

Professional Practices

Assignment 1

Hussain Durrani L1F24BSCS0937

Ali Hamza L1F24BSCS1037

Khawaja Waleed L1F24BSCS1024

Submitted To: Sir Ghazi Irfan

Question 1:

Traits of a profession and comparison:-

Traits of a profession and application to teaching:-

A profession is an occupation that requires specialized requirements for entry and practice. Based on professional practice principles include

Seriousness:-

Dedication and responsibility in one's work.

Adaptability: Handling unexpected challenges with confidence

Enthusiasm: positive attitude and motivation that inspire others

Communication Skills:-

Clear and confident interaction with others.

Helpfulness:- Teamwork and cooperation.

Initiative: Acting independently when needed.

Calmness Under pressure: Staying composed in stressful situations.

These behavioral traits are essential in the teaching profession. A teacher must show seriousness through dedication to student learning and remain calm under pressure to manage dynamic class room situation effectively.

Strong communication skills are vital for clear instruction, parent interaction and teamwork with colleagues. Teacher must also handle the unexpected, adapting to changing student needs and classroom challenges, while being helpful and cooperate with others staff.

Comparison:—

Software Engineer Vs. Barber/Cobbler.

The difference between a software engineer and a barber or cobbler lies in the complexity of their professional demands.

A software engineer must traits at a higher level

Showing excellent communication skills to explain technical concepts maintaining focus during complex problem solving. and studying calm under pressure when facing issues like system failure.

Question # 02

Legal and Ethical issues of Unauthorized Music downloading:-

The scenario of a friend sharing an authorized music downloading website presents both clear legal violations and ethical conflicts concerning intellectual property.

Legal and Ethical Issues:-

The act of downloading music from an unauthorized website directly relates to two main goals of a Code of Ethics, Intellectual property and unauthorized access to computer system.

Legal Issues:-

The downloading of music from central, unauthorized website database constitutes a violation of intellectual property rights. While the legal consequences depend on specific jurisdiction, the act of obtaining copyrighted material without permission is addressed by the principles of Intellectual property.

Unauthorized access to Computer System:-

Ethical issues:-

The Ethical concerns in this situation are based on the principles of integrity and fairness

i)

Violation of Integrity and Character:

As Jon Huntsman stated There are no normal shortcuts. Using an unauthorized site to avoid payment compromises integrity and weakens normal character. It is similar to a shopkeeper selling adulterated goods for extra profit both action place personal gain above ethical behaviour and the rights of others.

Unfairness :-

Accessing music without permission violates fairness toward creators. It deprives artists of rightful earnings and recognition, harming their livelihood.

Such behaviour shows a lack of responsibility and loyalty to ethical principles that promote honesty and respect for others work.

Question # 03

Ethical and Moral view on not following Covid-19 Rules:-

In March 2020, Covid-19 spread all over the world. In Pakistan, people were told to wear masks, stay at home and keep distance from others. But many ignored these rules. Let's discuss if this was right ethically and normally.

(i)

Lack of responsibility:

People who did not follow the rules acted carelessly. Everyone had a duty to protect their own health and other lives.

(ii)

Risk to others:-

By not wearing masks

or avoiding crowds, they spread the virus to innocent people including the elderly and sick.

(iii)

Ethical Mistake:

Ethically it showed selfishness and disrespect towards the community safety.

(iv)

Moral Duty Ignored:

Morally saving lives and helping others in danger is the right thing to do, but many failed to do so.

(v)

Results:

Because of such careless behaviour, the number of patient increase. hospitals

Conclusion:-

Not following Covid-19 precautions in 2020 was ethically and morally wrong. People should have acted responsibly, cared for others, and obeyed safety rules to protect society.

Question # (04)

Ethical, Moral and Legal issues on Social Media:-

Social media like Facebook and Twitter are used by students, teachers, doctors and businessmen. But with its benefits come some serious issues.

Legal Issue:-

Example: A teacher posts false news about a teacher. It harms the teacher's reputation. Spreading lies is against the law and can lead to legal action.

Ethical Issue :-

For example a doctor shares a patient picture or medical report online without permission. This breaks the rules of professional ethics. Doctors must protect the patient privacy and trust.

Moral Issue :-

A businessman spreads fake news to sell their products. This is dishonest and charms customers. Morally lying and cheating are wrong.

Conclusion :-

People should use social media responsibly, follow laws, respect others privacy and stay honest.

Question No 5:

As a manager, I will first discussed issue with her. Politely to understand her situation, since she is a good worker, I will try to offer flexible work hour or allow her to attend meetings online, if possible. At the same time, I will take to the male colleague and stop him from making disrespectful comments, as such behaviour is unprofessional. I will also make sure the workload is balanced so no one feels overburdened. These way, I can support my employee while maintaining discipline, respect, and professionalism in the workplace.

Question No 7:

In this situation, I will not support or use pirated software because it is illegal and unethical. I will explain to the management that using pirated software can cause legal problems and harm the company's reputation. I will suggest using genuine or open source software instead, as it is legal and safe. This approach shows honesty, professionalism and respect for the law, which are important in the field of professional practice.
